Ongoing and past external projects

TransEuroWorkS - Horizon Europe RIA Consortium (2022-2026) with Olaf van Vliet and Eduard Suari-Andreu
• Successful Horizon Europe 2021 bid for the call "Providing support in a changing world of work and social protection" (3 mil. Euros).
• Coordination and management of a nine-partner Horizon Europe consortium bid, consisting of universities, think tanks, and policy-oriented research centres with a diverse stakeholder board of international organisations and European research institutes.

Trade Unions and Migrant Social Rights Project (2020-2023) with Nadja Mosimann
• Investigation of the relationship between trade unions and the socio-economic rights of foreign workers.
• Analysis and construction of a quantitative country-level dataset of trade union characteristics namely, membership, political power, institutional structures, and organisational security dynamics and social rights for immigrants in 19 developed democracies from 1960 to 2010.

Political Consequences of Local Migrant Voting Rights Project (2019-2023) with Anna-Lena Nadler
• Evaluation of the impact of the introduction of non-citizen voting rights on turnout among citizens and the political efficacy attitudes among migrants (2 journal articles produced).
• Analyses using the Swiss Household Panel and the Measurement and Observation of Social Attitudes in Switzerland (MOSAiCH) datasets.
• Constructed an original longitudinal measurement of the non-citizen enfranchisement policy cases at the municipal level from 1999-2014.

Meta-Analysis of the Diversity-Trust Nexus Project (2020-2021) with Melanie Kolbe
• Provided a meta-analysis of the literature on social trust, institutions, and immigration.
• Multi-level quantitative analysis of the generalised social trust outcomes in 17 European democracies from 2002 to 2018 using the European Social Survey and country-level indicators.

Local Non-Citizen Voting Rights Indicator Project (2018-2020) with Merve Erdilmen
• Evaluation of the impact of existing immigration policy regimes, immigration stocks and rates, and political dynamics on the timing of non-citizen enfranchisement legislation.
• Constructed an original dataset on local voting rights in 28 democracies from 1980 to 2010 and studied the variation in the timing of immigrant enfranchisement policies in democratic societies with a survival analysis method.

Political Responses and Electoral Behaviour at Times of Socioeconomic Risk Inequalities and Immigration (2015-2020) Doctoral Research Project
• Studied the political negativity towards immigration as symptomatic of the large-scale transformations of European production systems and the restructuring of existing welfare regimes from the 2000s until 2018 across 16 European countries.

- Constructed an original measure of relative socio-economic risk exposure using the European Labour Force Survey (ELFS).
- Analyses were conducted using cross-sectional social surveys and public opinion data projects such as European Social Survey and German Social Survey, high-quality household panel data from Germany (SOEP) to identify different potential channels altering immigration-related reactions over time.

IPU Parliamentary Administrations Project (2016) with Norah Babic and Jonathan Lang

- Conducted a comparative research study on parliamentary service structures in five parliaments (India, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United Kingdom).
- Produced a research paper with findings concentrating on the mandates and powers, composition, degree of autonomy and governance management in parliamentary services.
- Expert interviews with the parliamentarians in the case study countries.

The final project report and executive summary were submitted on 7/2016 and presented results at the IPU-UNDP workshop for parliamentarians and secretaries general (5/2016).

Labour Migration Policy Selectivity Project (2015-2018) with Melanie Kolbe

- Analysis of the relationship between welfare state institutions, labour markets, social policy, and immigration policy characteristics.
- Developed and constructed an original comparative quantitative measure of skill selectivity in labour immigration policies for 20 developed democracies from 2000 to 2010, concentrating on the labour migration recruitment policies of high-skilled and low-skilled immigrants.
- Project delivered a reusable data set of Labour Migration Skill Selectivity and Rights Dataset.
